

This is true. Indeed, consider such a pair  $(m, w)$  and consider a perfect matching containing pairs  $(m, w')$  and  $(m', w)$ , and, hence, not  $(m, w)$ . Then since  $m$  and  $w$  each rank the other first, they each prefer the other to their partners in this matching, and so this matching cannot be stable.